1.1 Brief

M.CO consultants were engaged to work with the Cultural Services Section of Kilkenny County Council to develop the County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy, taking an integrated approach to Arts, Heritage and Libraries, and exploring the following key challenges:

How to harness County Kilkenny's authentic and distinctive cultural assets, people and resources to further stimulate culture.

How to promote the intrinsic value of culture, increasing the understanding and visibility of culture in County Kilkenny.

How to unlock opportunities for greater synergy within the Cultural Services Section in Kilkenny County Council, as well as future strategic actions for Heritage, Arts and Libraries.

How to best support culture within the context of existing initiatives and strategies.

1.2 Process

The County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy presents an integrated approach to cultural services and cultural management in County Kilkenny. It replaces separate plans for Arts, Biodiversity, Heritage and Library Services*. A number of factors led to the development of this integrated approach, including the establishment of the Cultural Services Section, the desire for a more joined up approach to public consultation, and the direction of national policy such as Culture 2025 and Creative Ireland. The Cultural Services Section worked with M.CO on the following strategic process. A detailed timeline is provided in Appendix A.

*This strategy replaces: the Arts Strategy (2005-2009); the Kilkenny Heritage Plan (2007-2011); the Kilkenny Biodiversity Plan (2009-2014) and the Kilkenny Library Development Plan (2009-2013) – these plans were extended to allow full implementation of key actions.

1.3 Culture

Our Interpretation of Culture

In a broad sense, culture arises from the interaction of people and place over time, shaping communities and customs, creative, intellectual and spiritual pursuits, built and natural landscapes, and ecosystems.

How we define, identify with, and participate in culture varies from community to community and person to person. For the purposes of the County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy, the term culture refers to expressions, practitioners and activities within the fields of arts, heritage (built, natural and cultural) and libraries.

This strategy recognises that cultural diversity and biodiversity are connected and reinforce each other. It is committed to strengthening the links between them. Cultural practices often depend on specific elements of biodiversity; biodiversity is, in parallel, often developed, maintained, and managed by cultural groups.¹

Kilkenny's culture is what makes the county unique, what gives it its special character and its sense of place. It is a reflection and expression of our values, knowledge and traditions.

The culture of Kilkenny belongs to the people of Kilkenny. Ownership confers the right for everyone to participate in culture in accordance with their needs and preferences. It also confers the responsibility of conserving and enhancing culture for ourselves and future generations.

Culture contributes to many aspects of our lives and has many tangible and intangible benefits. It contributes to our quality and enjoyment of life, and our sense of place and local pride. It also facilitates economic activity and provides employment.

1.4 Description of the Cultural Services Section

The Cultural Services Section in Kilkenny County Council was established by the Director of Services in October 2015 to provide an integrated approach to cultural service delivery in the County Council. Its vision is to create and sustain great places and communities by facilitating a fully integrated and strategic approach to cultural services, comprising the Arts, Heritage, Libraries, Conservation and Architecture services.

The Cultural Services Section aims to play a vital role in the lives of individuals and their communities in County Kilkenny. It serves as a custodian of both national and local culture, and also a catalyst for local culture in County Kilkenny, through supporting high-quality arts, heritage, libraries and architectural design.

The goals of the Cultural Services Section are to ensure: that culture thrives in County Kilkenny; that culture is celebrated and valued; that as many people as possible experience the richness and diversity of culture on offer; and that the Cultural Services Section plays an integral role in Kilkenny County Council.

The Cultural Services Section shares common values, underpinning the development of the County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy. These include: culture has important intrinsic value; culture can create economic value for individuals and communities; culture can enhance quality of life, health and well being at a personal and collective level; culture can promote community and civic participation, social inclusion and a better sense of place and identity.

The Kilkenny Arts Office, Kilkenny Heritage Office and Kilkenny Library are all part of the same Directorate, and report to the Strategic Policy Committee for Planning and Development, Heritage, Community, Arts and Culture.

The Kilkenny Arts Office works to further strengthen Kilkenny's position as a centre of excellence for the arts and ensure a successful and thriving arts environment.

The Kilkenny Heritage Office works with communities and agencies to ensure that Kilkenny's built, natural and cultural heritage is promoted, protected and enjoyed by current and future generations

The Kilkenny Library Service is the heart of the local community, providing for the informational, cultural, educational, social and learning needs of the county.

1.4 Cultural Services Section

Overview of the Arts Office

The Arts Office works to develop, co-ordinate, motivate, inspire and strengthen artistic activity throughout the city and county. We promote the arts as a worthwhile activity for all, coordinate key cultural events, and provide advice and support for groups and individuals.

At the core of all of our work is the practitioner. We offer professional and practical development initiatives across all art forms, thus affording practitioners the time, space and skills to develop their practice.

We coordinate key cultural events and manage community and educational activities, building audiences, increasing capacity and civic participation. The Arts Office collaborates and partners with a number of local and national agencies in order to deliver our initiatives as we recognise this as key to maintaining and developing policy and programming.

The Arts Office works to further strengthen Kilkenny's position as a centre of excellence for the arts and ensure a successful and thriving arts environment within the region.

Overview of the Heritage Office

The core purpose of the Heritage Office is to ensure that Kilkenny's built, natural and cultural heritage is protected, promoted and enjoyed by current and future generations.

The Heritage Office provides a professional heritage service throughout the county. This includes providing advice and information on heritage issues; developing policies and priorities for the identification, protection, conservation and enhancement of Kilkenny's heritage; collecting and collating heritage data; and promoting heritage awareness and education throughout the county.

The Heritage Office works with the County Kilkenny Heritage Forum to prepare and implement strategic county plans for heritage (built, natural and cultural). The Heritage Office and Heritage Forum have adopted a broad definition of heritage, including monuments, archaeological objects, heritage objects, architectural heritage, flora, fauna, wildlife habitats, landscapes, seascapes, wrecks, heritage gardens and parks, geology and inland waterways, as set out in the Heritage Act (1995).

They have also included additional aspects of heritage relevant to County Kilkenny including sport, local history, folklore, place names, genealogy, traditional skills, industrial heritage, social history and oral heritage.

Overview of the Library Service

The core purpose of the Kilkenny Library Service is to provide for the informational, cultural, educational, social and learning needs of Kilkenny citizens.

The service aims to provide safe, trusted and democratic spaces at the heart of the local community which are accessible to everyone and enable engagement and participation.

Strategic programming of events and activities, working in partnership with community groups, cultural organisations, statutory organisations and other groups, as well as the provision of user focused services, ensures we meet the varied and changing needs of our communities.

The Kilkenny Library Service aims to ensure the delivery of high-quality library programming and services which are community focused and cross-sectoral. Working together with our Council and community is a key strategy that enables us to deliver our goals and continually improve the way we deliver our services.

Kilkenny Library Service operates through a branch network of 8 libraries. It is supported by the administrative functions of library headquarters, which also provides the local studies service. The mobile library provides a vital rural service and serves over 50 rural areas over a 3 week schedule. The library service is open over 280 hours per week with late night and Saturday opening. A broad and varied range of digital services are also provided 24 hours a day, 7 days a week via the library's website.

2.1 Strategic Context

Understanding the Strategic Context

Understanding and aligning with the strategic context provides the opportunity for the County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy to contribute and add value to existing strategy and policy objectives from local to European level, and to benefit from existing momentum, initiatives and potential funding options.

A strategic mapping exercise was completed to identify and assess key local, regional, national and European strategies and frameworks, and extract recurring themes, namely:

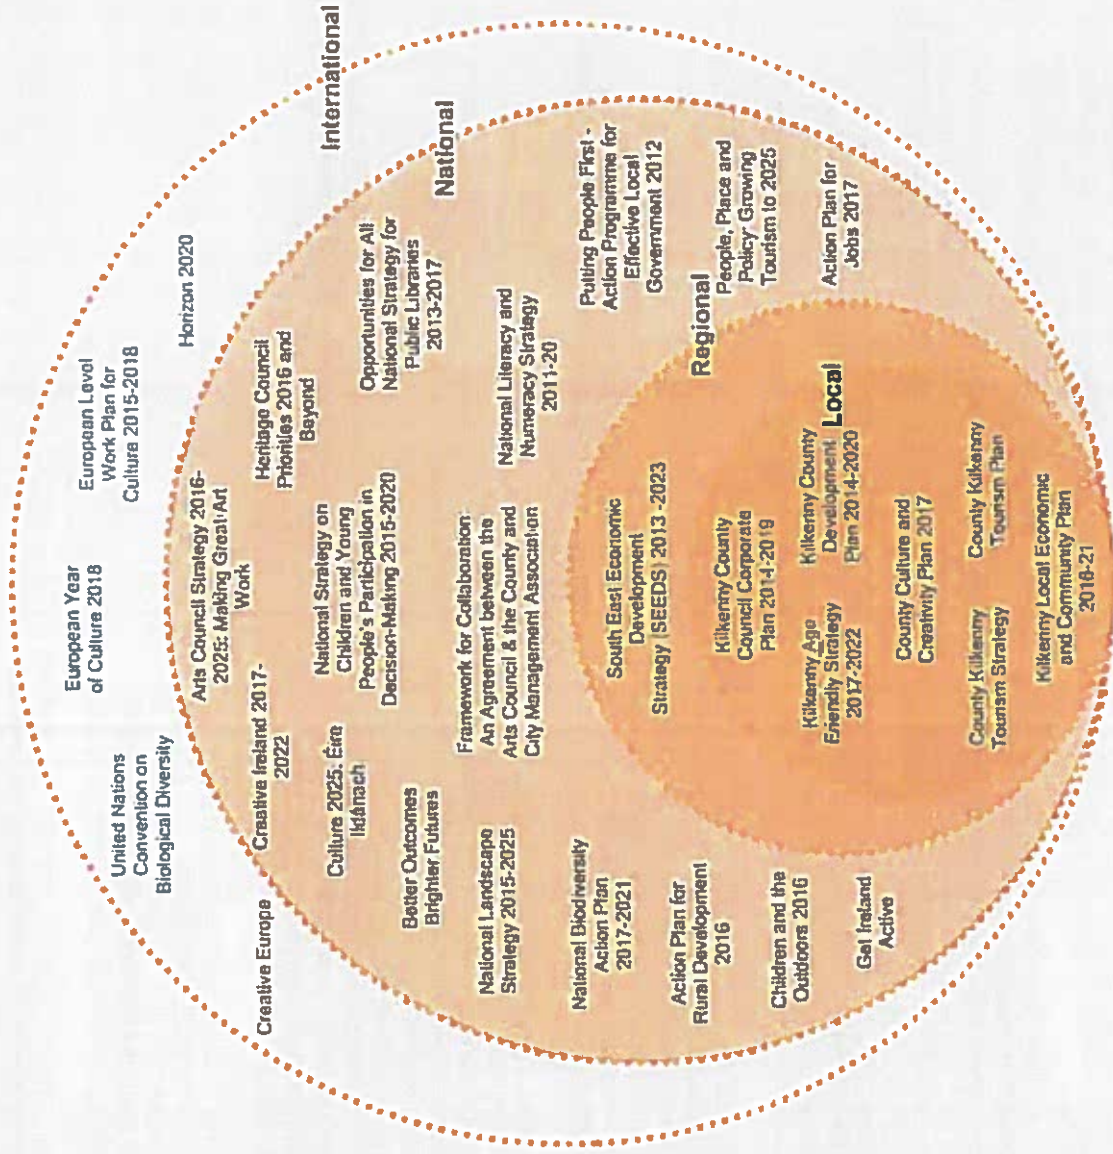

Social Value of Culture

In addition to having a vital intrinsic value, culture has an important social value. It plays a role in improving quality of life, health and well being, a sense of local and national identity, and social cohesion.^{1 2 3 6 7 8}

It does this, for example, by providing opportunities to access information and learn, to interact with others and share cultural experiences, to feel more immersed in a community, to enjoy recreation and reflection, and to connect with nature, which is of particular importance for children.^{7 4 5 10}

There is widespread strategic support for developing cultural initiatives aligning with this motivation. However, it is recognised that there is a need to identify and collate evidence-based data on the social contribution of culture to inform planning.⁵

In particular, there is an interest in supporting and celebrating the Irish language, Gaeltacht areas and traditional culture, such as music, dance, sport, folklore and storytelling, recognising their importance to Irish identity.^{1 3 7 8}

2.1 Strategic Context

Economic Value of Culture

Culture can also be harnessed to add economic value for individuals and communities.^{1 2 3 6 7 8 9}

Culture provides diverse opportunities for individuals to develop into more literate, informed, articulate and confident citizens, which supports local economic initiatives and development, as well as individual well being.¹³

Culture is inextricably linked to creativity, which is increasingly prioritised in local and national strategies as a key catalyst for innovation, learning, entrepreneurship, business differentiation and overall economic prosperity.^{1 3 4 9}

There is a recognition that people involved in culture, either as professionals or volunteers, possess vital creative abilities and skills which should be supported, valued and diffused.^{8 9}

There is also a desire to encourage the public more to engage in cultural initiatives, especially from a young age, to unlock their full creative potential.^{1 2 3 7 6 10}

Culture is also seen as a key driver for the economy in terms of its contribution to creating differentiated, authentic tourism offerings. There is strong support for investing in sustainable cultural tourism initiatives at a local, regional and national level, ranging from the development of cultural quarters to more trails and walks embracing natural heritage.^{1 2 3 5 7 9}

Ireland's heritage assets have a multiplicity of benefits, including economic.¹⁴ Ireland's historic built environment and ecosystem services (the benefits that people obtain from ecosystems) are both significant contributors to Ireland's national economy.^{15 10}

The wide social and economic benefits of culture are considered of particular strategic importance for rural areas, to help support their sustainability.^{3 7}

Professional and Volunteer Practitioners

Culture relies critically on a dedicated and talented pipeline of multi-disciplinary people working in either a professional or volunteer capacity in the cultural sector.⁸

It is a well-established strategic priority to create the right conditions for people working in the cultural sector to have sustainable and rewarding careers. Amongst other supports, it is necessary to evaluate and address access to job creation and skills development.^{1 6 8 11}

It is also widely agreed that there is strategic opportunity in supporting and investing in emerging or established hubs of cultural and creative talent to create centres of excellence that can perform at a national and international level. There is potential to leverage their existing learnings, strengths and momentum. Examples include County Kilkenny's track record in design and crafts, or Ireland's national efforts to concentrate on digital media and film production.^{6 7}

Access and Public Engagement

The significant benefits of culture can only be fully realised if there is strong public awareness and engagement.

Accordingly, there is strategic demand for initiatives that make culture more prominent, accessible and as close to people as possible, for example by highlighting day-to-day interactions with culture, encouraging free and subsidised access to sites and events, and improving digital access.^{1 2 3 7 8}

There is also a strategic need for initiatives that diversify audiences and target excluded groups, to ensure culture represents and includes all people.^{3 8}

It is recognised that cultural initiatives create high impact when they are community focused and community led. Accordingly, there is general support for a collaborative approach to cultural planning and decentralised ownership of initiatives.^{1 11}

Children and Young People

In particular, it is seen as strategically important to focus on immersing children and young people in culture.^{1 2 3 7 8 10}

To support this, cultural organisations should adopt the principle of children's participation, ensuring children's views inform their activities.¹²

Culture in all aspects should also be better incorporated into the educational system, such as nurturing creativity, improving arts education and increasing interaction with the outdoors.^{1 9 10}

2.2 Potential Opportunity

Stakeholder and Public Engagement Process

An extensive stakeholder and public engagement process was carried out in order to gain insights into the cultural context in County Kilkenny and to generate ideas for future action.¹

The engagement process was targeted at both those people involved in delivering culture in County Kilkenny and those people who consume it, in order to understand their different perspectives and balance their needs.

In order to access insights from the professionals and volunteers directly involved in the cultural sector, one-to-one phone calls and a facilitated stakeholder workshop with diverse representation were conducted.

In order to tap into insights from the more general public, a series of three public pop-up events and a survey were completed. Both were advertised extensively by the Cultural Services Section through local media, social media and internal databases.

The engagement process sought to understand what are the key needs and wants for the future, what already exists that works well and can be built upon, and what new ideas have potential and could be explored.

There was a high level of stakeholder awareness, interest and engagement. A total of 150 consultees contributed to the process of developing the County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy, with many participants responding positively to the prospect of a joined-up and strategic approach to culture.

2.2 Potential Opportunity

Understanding Concerns and Needs

What emerged through the stakeholder and public engagement process was a generally positive feeling towards culture in County Kilkenny – both its current state and its future potential.

While an immense pride in the culture of County Kilkenny was evident, it was acknowledged that there is some room to improve. In particular, concerns were raised around resources, funding and accessibility from the perspective of the cultural sector, and awareness and information from the public perspective.

Leveraging Strengths

From the stakeholder and public engagement process, a number of key strengths were identified which informed the development of the Strategic Framework, namely:

Interest and Pride

The stakeholder and public engagement process highlighted the interest and pride of people in County Kilkenny in their culture as a unique strength, with many existing networks and communities actively participating in culture.

There was a keen awareness of existing cultural assets, with people identifying a wide selection of natural heritage, built heritage, cultural networks, community spaces and cultural venues across Kilkenny City and other regional towns.

There was also a high level of cultural engagement amongst survey participants, with 63% engaging at least weekly in cultural activities. Libraries emerged as vital community spaces, with 77% of respondents using them regularly.

Built and Natural Heritage

Built heritage was highlighted as a signature strength throughout the stakeholder and public engagement process, in particular the preservation of historic buildings and the presence of unique and iconic visitor attractions.

Relatedly, the unique strength most often associated with County Kilkenny's culture was identified as the rich medieval history and the well-preserved medieval buildings, in particular in Kilkenny City.

Despite the emphasis on built heritage as a distinctive feature of County Kilkenny's cultural offering, natural heritage dominated in terms of actual engagement. It was the most frequently cited cultural touchpoint, with 78% of survey respondents engaging with nature regularly.

Creative Practitioners and Networks

The survey responses highlighted the long-established, talented and collaborative network of practitioners as a distinctive strength of County Kilkenny's culture. In particular, they noted the long history of creative practitioners living in County Kilkenny, the presence of agencies and engaged societies, and the collaborative nature of the community of practitioners.

Existing Initiatives

The survey analysis identified the main strength of County Kilkenny's culture as the variety of cultural activities and initiatives on offer, which meet the needs and interests of a diverse range of people.

In particular, respondents noted the importance of County Kilkenny's wide-ranging festivals and events in contributing to its multi-faceted and year-round cultural offering.

As one survey respondent commented: "What makes County Kilkenny culturally distinctive from the other places in Ireland is that there is something for everyone from young to old, and everyone is welcome to attend."

Children and Young People

Making children and young people more involved in culture was seen as a crucial part of future success. Stakeholders identified a range of successful initiatives and programmes already tailoring their approach to the needs of children and young people.

They also recognised the important role that schools and libraries play in providing access and encouragement to engage in culture, and strongly emphasised the potential to build on this and do more through these avenues.

Identifying Emerging Opportunities

A selection of potential opportunities were also identified, namely:

Rural Kilkenny

Throughout the stakeholder and public engagement process, it was identified that there is an opportunity to do more to develop and support culture in County Kilkenny's rural areas. It was recognised that they are an important and sometimes underused part of culture.

15/05/2018

Draft Kilkenny County Council Cultural Strategy
2018-2022

2.2 Potential Opportunity

Customs, Storytelling and Folklore

The process revealed a particular interest in building on County Kilkenny's traditional culture, ranging from customs, storytelling, folklore, local history and Irish language.

Diversifying Participation

While it was felt that people were generally highly engaged in culture, and that the cultural offering in County Kilkenny catered to a wide range of interests and needs, many stakeholders felt there was an opportunity to make culture more accessible and inclusive.

This ranged from improving physical and financial access, increasing representativeness of minority groups, and demystifying culture and making it more open and relevant to disengaged groups.

This was articulated more strongly by those stakeholders involved in the cultural sector as professionals or volunteers. It was felt this could increase the benefits of culture and make sure they were fairly distributed amongst the population.

3.1 Distinctive Cultural Identity

Distinctive Characteristics of Kilkenny

From analysing the stakeholder insights, it emerged that County Kilkenny benefits from unique strengths underpinning its culture. This offered the opportunity to define a distinctive cultural identity for County Kilkenny, describing what makes it special today that will continue to differentiate it in the future.

Developing a distinctive cultural identity provides an authentic, overarching vision for future success. It describes three core distinctive characteristics, each of which must be nurtured and maintained in order to maximise the strength and impact of culture in County Kilkenny.

Strength of History & Heritage

"Our medieval heritage and historic connections to everything from marble to brewing and even distilling, gives us plenty to talk about and claim fame to."

Pride in our Culture

"There is a great sense of pride in Kilkenny's culture... it is recognised that it contributes to our economy, sense of place and identity."

Hub of Creative Talent

"The grassroots efforts of artists, makers, promoters and curators that allows the county to punch well above its weight."

15/05/2018

Draft Kilkenny County Council Cultural Strategy
2018-2022

3.2 Strategic Priorities

The strategic priorities arose from stakeholder insights and analysis of existing strategic priorities and initiatives. They were identified as opportunities for County Kilkenny to focus on specific areas which will further enhance and develop its cultural offering into the future. They will provide a targeted focus for the Cultural Services Section over the next 5 years, defining the areas for special strategic focus and development.

Enable best practice delivery of culture

It is the practitioners who work in the cultural sector, both professional and volunteers, who provide the foundation for culture to thrive in County Kilkenny.

To continue to develop and attract dedicated and talented individuals, it is important for the Cultural Services Section to sustain County Kilkenny's successful track record and reputation as a cultural and creative centre.

The Cultural Services Section will promote best practice management of culture, and help to create an environment where people working in the cultural sector are valued and have rewarding and sustainable careers.

Increase and diversify participation

The impressive quality and variety of cultural activities and amenities on offer throughout County Kilkenny has led to good public engagement.

However, the benefits of culture could be amplified further by increasing participation, and spread more equitably by targeting excluded groups.

The Cultural Services Section is committed to developing partnerships within and outside the cultural sectors to build greater public engagement.

Support culture in rural and urban areas

The substantial rural areas and communities in County Kilkenny are an essential part of its identity.

The wider Kilkenny County Council is committed to making all towns, villages and rural areas across the county sustainable places to live, in terms of economic and social well being.

While this requires a holistic approach, the Cultural Services Section has an important role to play. It is committed to supporting more connected and culturally engaged communities, enabling better access to cultural services, and supporting cultural enterprise and tourism.

Engage children and young people in culture

Immersing people in culture from an early age fosters a deeper appreciation and engagement and helps to safeguard culture into the future.

The cultural offering in County Kilkenny will benefit by continuing to take into account the needs of children and young people.

To support this, the Cultural Services Section is committed to encouraging collaborative planning with children and supporting more targeted cultural initiatives.

Communicate the value of culture

In addition to having a vital intrinsic value, culture can provide great social, health and well being, quality of life, environmental and economic benefit to individuals and communities.

In order to maximise its impact, and ultimately the value generated by culture in County Kilkenny, the real existing and future potential should be understood by all involved.

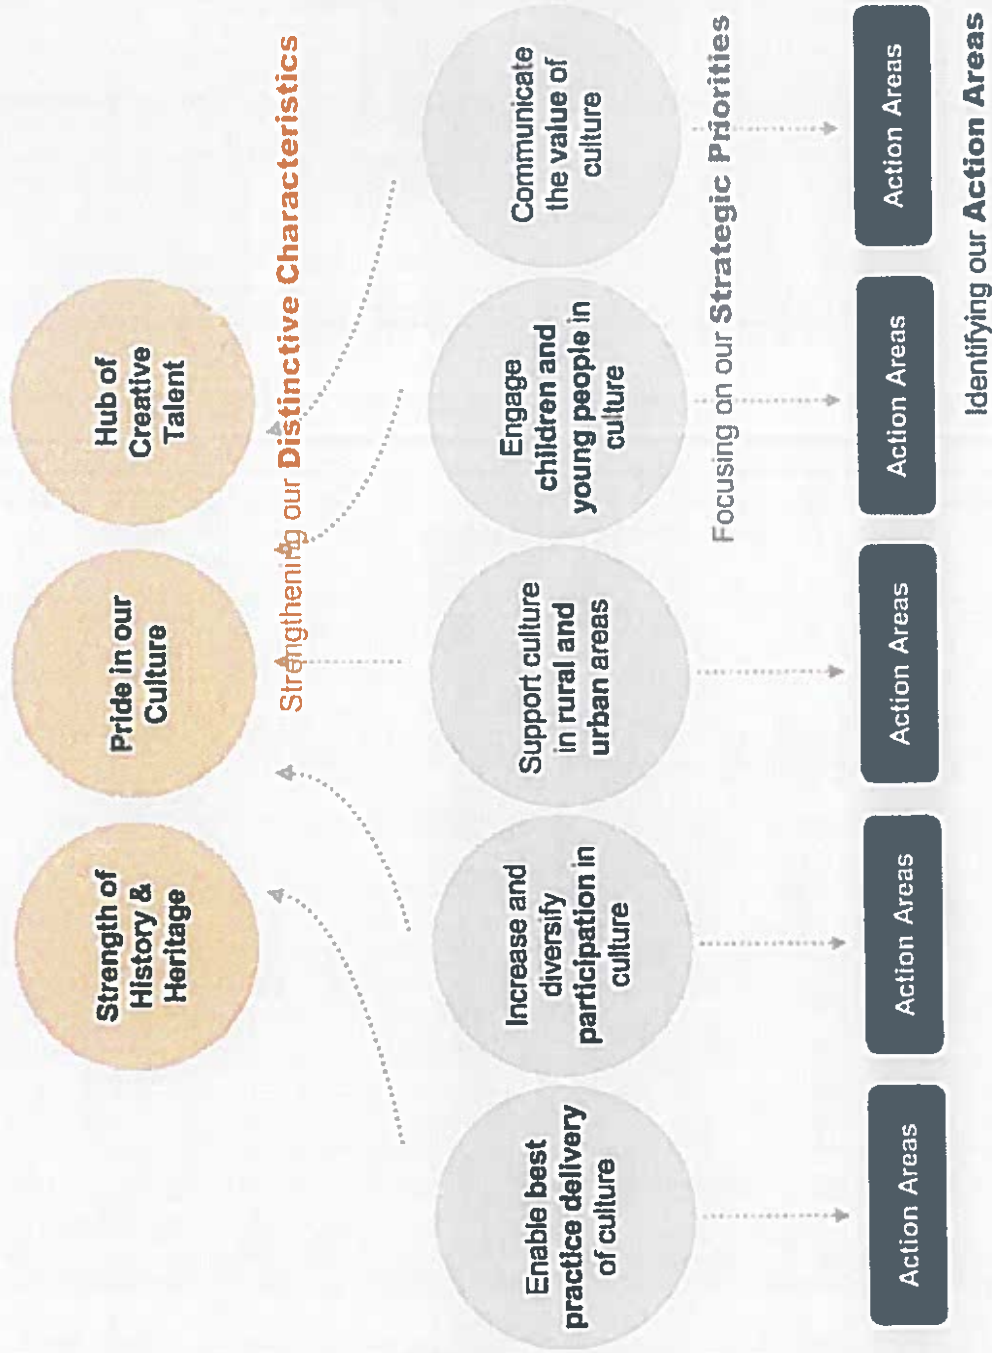

The Cultural Services Section is committed to improving awareness, championing a strategic and integrated approach, measuring and demonstrating the value of culture, and advocating for its importance.

4.1 Implementation Approach

The County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy provides strategic direction and a targeted five-year work plan. In particular, it will inform the forthcoming Creative Ireland Plan.

Kilkenny County Council is committed, in partnership with others, to the delivery of the actions in the County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy over the period 2018-2022. Other key funding partners include the Heritage Council (under the County Heritage Plan process), the Arts Council and the Libraries Development Unit, Department of Rural and Community Development and Department of Housing, Planning, Community and Local Government.

The County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy will form the basis for the work of the Arts, Heritage and Libraries services for the period 2018-2022. Each service will, on an annual basis, draft a work programme based on the contents of the County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy, the Action Areas contained within, and current priorities. This will then be used to apply for funding from various local and national sources. Once an annual budget is confirmed, the work programme will be determined, providing further detail on the projects proposed, the project partners, timeframes and individuals and organisations responsible for delivery.

To monitor and evaluate implementation of the County Kilkenny Cultural Strategy, a report on actions undertaken and progress made will be submitted to Kilkenny County Council and published on the Council's website at the end of each year.

“I am delighted to have played a small part in helping to retain this important piece of rural heritage. Meeting with landowners and hearing their stories about the land and the origins of the field names is a privilege.”
Deirdre Doyle

“You have to have the right personality for this kind of work. There's no point being shy about it. I used to know everybody because I worked for the ESB and had no trouble walking in anywhere. And people are only too glad to share the field names. I'd like to have them all recorded around here before they are gone. It's a shame.”

Kilkenny County Library Service

Introduction

Formed in Oct 2015 the Cultural Services Section of Kilkenny County Council brings together Arts, Heritage and Libraries to facilitate a strategic cultural service.

The Cultural Services Section commissioned MCO for the development of an Integrated Cultural Strategy for County Kilkenny in April 2017. The Cultural Strategy will set out a shared vision for Arts, Heritage and Libraries for the next five years and identify both shared and distinct priority actions.

As part of the development of the Cultural Strategy, a stakeholder workshop was convened in May 2017. This generated initial insights from a diverse group of people involved directly or indirectly in shaping the intrinsic culture and the cultural services on offer across County Kilkenny.

Building on this, a wider public consultation process was conducted during June 2017 to gather user insights and generate ideas for the future of Arts, Heritage and Libraries in County Kilkenny. This consisted of a series of pop-up events and a public survey. The public consultation was publicised widely by Arts, Heritage and Libraries through local media, social media and existing internal databases.

119 people participated in the public consultation process, marking considerable public interest in the development of an Integrated Cultural Strategy and its potential impact.

The purpose of this document is to provide a synthesis of the insights generated from this process.

Understanding Concerns

There were distinct differences in concerns identified by people depending on whether or not they identified as being involved in culture as their job or in a volunteer capacity.

Those formally involved in culture were primarily concerned with accessibility and inclusivity, and funding and infrastructure. Regarding accessibility and inclusion, respondents were particularly concerned with dispelling misconceptions that culture is elitist, embracing multiculturalism and meeting the needs of children and older people. Regarding funding and infrastructure, the main focus was on more funding for creative practitioners, consistent funding for initiatives and investment in more creative studios and spaces.

Those not involved in culture as their job or as a volunteer were primarily concerned with better promoting Kilkenny's culture and marketing its cultural attractions in an integrated way. Respondents also called for better information on what already exists, to support people in accessing culture and to better leverage Kilkenny's breadth of cultural amenities.

- The concerns raised by respondents mainly focused on two things – resources, funding and accessibility from the perspective of the cultural sector, and marketing and information from the public perspective.
- The potential opportunities for County Kilkenny's culture looked to build on core traditions, such as customs, storytelling, folklore, local history and Irish language.
